

From the outside, layered spaces result in clusters of activity throughout the library, always maintaining visual connections.

