

PLACEMAKING

This floating statement stair at the entry welcomes visitors and employees into the space. A masterful technical feat, the stair serves as the central connection point between the various workplace functions. The two-story opening, glass rails, and full height glass partitions promote cross-discipline transparency. From this point, the design encourages efficiency and autonomy as users choose their path to the distribution center, open offices, conference rooms, or café.

