

The Aluminum framed double layer curtain wall is a automated transformable screen. The concept of the screen is developed based on the solar radiation. The southeast side of the screen has horizontal louvers and it transformed its width to length in a way that it gets more vertical in size towards south west corner. The screen will be controlled by the user of the room, and the variation movement of the screen will also create a impression of living